The Pinellas Suncoast Transit Authority set its third consecutive all-time monthly ridership record last month, making for eight new records over the past nine months. February's overall ridership was up 1.7% over the same period in 2014. So far this year, the agency has seen ridership increase 4.6% over last year. Officials say that's an impressive number given the recent reduction in gasoline prices as compared to the past few years.

Without expensive and widespread customer surveys, PSTA leaders say there's no way to know exactly why more rides are being taken, but they suspect that it's due to a combination of factors including an improving economy, record tourism and the agency's new UPASS programs with the University of South Florida, St. Petersburg College and the City of St. Petersburg.

More rides were taken on PSTA last month than any other February in agency history.
